I reinstalled the wcs server and updated it to the newest version while i was at it.

For now weapon restrictions are bugged and disabled, normally a fixing update for that will follow soon.

I hope this made the server 'playable' again

I didn't ask everyone's arguments why they can't help TWK wcs, i just wanted to illustrate that i don't Have much leisure time. So i won't be coding much in the near future. Everyone is free to give it a shot, it's no rocket science and in the end the satisfaction after doing something good is fun. You can mess around with skillcodes, all kinds of effects and configs and most importantly make it a better server for everyone to play on. Proof that i'm not lying ? I've been doing this for nearly 3 years now and still enjoy it...

I must admit it's been tough coding during the last 12 months the mod has been making great progress and has become more stable

If you are interested and have some time to spare check the warcraft-source forums and check out their tutorials

Greetings

I've already started coding, completed my first race on the test server =P only issue is, as there is no fast dl server access for me, the custom sounds don't work unless you have them already xD

I wish I could start learning how to make races, but got far too much coding on my plate as it is. Learning

C++ for University, Java for Minecraft modding and maybe University too, keeping on top of my website editing, don't think I can throw WCS on top of that xD

The new wcs server has a bug that causes people not to get xp from bots, apprently it works for Substick, but not for anyone else
