Unfortunately, even though it would be a "low level' enchantment table, it stills goes against what we think is survival. In the previous map there was a pig cooker that provided endless free food, and it quite literally prevented a vast amount of people making the effort to go out and kill animals for food because they knew that they could just use the pig cooker. I feel as though an enchantment table at spawn would do pretty much the exact same thing.

Sorry to put a negative view on your idea.

i would say the exact same thing, enchanting is already WAY too easy. About the only thing that prevents everyone from running around in PROT IV armor is the fact you need 45 pieces of leather to make the bookcases.
