A game can brag about destructable enviroment all they want but its just destructable objects. When I can blow a crater in the ground and make my own hole in the rock Im gonna agree. But if its like in BC2 where walls can be destroyed but not wrecks and rubble it aint a destructable enviroment, just objects...

Tbh at first destructive games was a good idea, but after you get to them in a MP scenario, it just gets annoying.. You hide in cover on BC2 to regen, and boom the wall blows up...

Looks ok, but nothing special.
