

Inverted

Right my brother and I are having an argument due to this vid:

He refuses to believe that a player playing with inverted controls on a game that includes (but is obviously not based on) helicopters and planes, will have their controls inverted again, meaning down on a helicopter will be down and up will be up.

Anyone out there that plays battlefield and whatnot, could you clear this up for us? If you are on battlefield and you are using inverted controls, does up become up and down, down for flying aircraft?

Knew it was. Fair enough if it was a game that's soley based on flying aircraft I'd agree with him but when it's an fps like battlefield or something, I'm the gamer, he's not, I'm right, he's wrong 😊
(He now refuses to believe that any game like that is a good game, I laughed)

And Den making an aircraft inverted to make it normal's horrible! I'm used to aiming up with up but flying up with down, it'd be like me trying to play cod inverted, doesn't work

Number 17: You smell of wet dog

Number 402: i was more thinking of general controlls, never tried it with an aircraft

Playing inverted is effin stupid, has nohing to do with reality and messes my brain.. yeah, vagon plays inverted too, so pullling the mouse or joystick towards you brings the nose down, its stupid. STUPID.

Aircrafts don't behave that way and while on cs is rather confusing too.
