

Skream, you'll scream.

If you don't know who Skream is, well, your life isn't complete and I'm joyful at being able to expose you to the dub-step genius that he is.

I just had to make this topic, it's urgent, it's the biggest thing I've heard in a long time and I hope that isn't solely because I love bass so low that you literally can't hear it. But hey, here I am, hoping for the reassurance of my peers when saying that the song you are about to download is THE song of 2009:

(removed because of copyright)

La Roux - In for the kill (Skream let's get ravey mix).

Drip drip drip there goes an eargasm... it's got drops, subs, voxx, dub-dnb fusion and the composition is just "Ughhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh" I think it'll be the first dub-step track to make it into the top of the charts. Anyway, it's 5:43AM and I'm off to bed, nah who am I kidding, I'm listening to this track again.

**Recommendations: a decent sound system with a nice sub, and an open mind.

I bet it is a complete work if you like it, but I don't listen to this kind of music. Is the vocalist a boy?

The vocalist is female shlab, thank you for listening xD

You shouldn't have a "type" of music, merely a desire to hear it!

It's hard to desire, when I don't really like it. 🙄

I have listened to it twice too, trying to feel the groove, but it didn't help. All I could think of was if it was either a boy or a girl who sang (screamed)...

Ha ha, I assure you it's a girl... quite haunting vocals, I do love it so.

I always thought that dubstep wasn't a particularly niche genre of music, especially being a mostly rock-orientated music lover. Perhaps I was wrong.

I have to say while I'm out I prefer to gyrate to the thumping base of dance (more so dubstep, dnb, break and trance) and get my grind on to RnB rather than bopping along to a tuneful rock melody. However I do love a good live gig...

Just so I can get a feel for your music tastes Slab, have a listen to this guy:

He's a friend of a friend, nice guy. Let me know what you think.

It's not illegal content vogon, it's a freely available remix which is also endorsed by Radio 1's Zane Lowe. Most remixes done in such a fashion are immediately uploaded to the web by their creator for free download.

That was quite good actually, he must have some equipment to record with that quality 😊
He's good on the guitar.

But it's not what I usually listen to. Btw, "I have to say while I'm out I prefer to gyrate to the thumping base of dance (more so dubstep, dnb, break and trance) and get my grind on to RnB rather than bopping along to a tuneful rock melody. However I do love a good live gig..." that is very true 😊

But when on a consert, this is the kind of music I like, when I really know the lyrics and can sing together with the rest of the audience! 😊

(Listen to: Maestro, Kontroll Paa Kontinentet and Enden av November)

It's a strange band idd, but they have their own way of preforming music which makes them so cool 😊

Sorry about that mate, but as I saw &quot;Rapidshare&quot; just trying to avoid issues.

If its freely available it would be better to post their &quot;official&quot; website, that way even if some &quot;authority&quot; sees this it would be OK. You do have to understand they wouldn't know if its free or not.

Again, sorry, but without any &quot;proof&quot; that its free no rapidshare linky (and mind you I'm not doubting you at all, as I trust you, I'm doubting some Mr. Copyright Law that could see this 😊
