

Laptop to PC

Posted by Che ken - 15 Oct 2011 17:15

Need all you techy experts help...

My laptop's getting old, is starting to break (graphics card fails now and then, games that should play don't, usb ports are almost broken, touchpad not working, battery buggered, speakers buggered etc) and just doesn't do what I want any more.

Now the main reasons I want to switch to a PC are:

1) My laptop is pretty much a PC these days. It never leaves my desk, is hooked up to a mouse, keyboard and monitor and rarely turns off

2) I can upgrade a PC, I can't do that to a laptop as far as I'm aware (not without a large sum of money I assume) I'm thinking of a budget that I used for this laptop, which was between £6-700. It's to play games (I would say the biggest game I have is Just Cause 2, which requires 3GB RAM and will just about run on this laptop if I have nothing else (including explorer.exe) running alongside it

I'm also looking to get MW3 if I buy the PC before it comes out (otherwise I've got it on xbox), TOR and ME3 will obviously be for PC and so I'd like to run them on it as well.

Any advice on what might be good for me with this sort of a background? Anything I should avoid when buying like a certain brand? (Currys/PC World I know to avoid lol) I have my personal tech guy (sisters husband) on the search but would like some other opinions.

=====

Re: Laptop to PC

Posted by Johannicus - 17 Oct 2011 15:20

Liquid Snake wrote:

im actually gonna buy a new pc aswell in about a week and a half time.

ill be getting a

intel i7 2600 3,40 ghz

8 GB ddr3 ram

ATI Radeon HD6570 - 1GB

1,5 TB harddrive

and ill instantly include the razer stealth and a razer headset not sure wich one im gonna get yet already got the razer naga molten edition and Razer sphex mousemat (although its one of them sticky mousemats so ima swap it out for the razer goliathus) so good on those parts 🤔 however ill be getting the Cooler Master HAF 922 with it as the standard case is just ugly as hell and well coolermaster is just a good case imo

price for the pc would be around 612 quid and as for the case i got no clue lol

I say go for NZXT, they got cool looking designs and are around the same price with some over and some under it aswell.

=====

Re: Laptop to PC

Posted by Liquid Snake - 17 Oct 2011 15:40

thanks but no thanks johannicus ive looked at nzxt before around here they cost 130 euro's atleast that is for the nzxt phantom white and well i just like the looks of coolermaster a bit more 🤔

thanks for the suggestion though! 🤔

=====